Does South Sudan have a one stop shop Investment Center?

In March 2020 South Sudan upgraded the South Sudan Investment Authority (SSIA) to the Ministry of Investment, as recommended in Chapter I of the peace agreement. In theory the Ministry of Investment has a One Stop Shop Investment Center. However, both organizations are poorly resourced and neither maintains an active website.

Are trade and investment conditions improving in South Sudan?

Trade and investment conditions in South Sudan have slightly improved in the past year, but many challenges remain. The peace process has moved into the transition phase with the constitution of a new presidency structure and cabinet as components of a new Revitalized Transitional Government of National Unity in February and March 2020.

How much remittance does South Sudan receive?

Remittance Policies The World Bank estimated remittances to South Sudan at roughly $600 million in 2018, roughly 14 percent of GDP. As markets contract globally and earners are impacted by lockdowns, trade disruptions, layoffs, and illness, the amount of remittance inflows is likely to drop.

Does South Sudan have a new investment policy?

In May 2021, South Sudan's newly installed Minister of Investment presented to President Kiir plans to upgrade South Sudan's investment policy and increase capacity for international investors to invest in South Sudan. As of the date of publication, the government has not taken any concrete steps to implement these proposals.
